We are on a mission to challenge and question EVERYTHING that we think we know about sports, education, and development.

Through this journey we've worked with best-selling authors, olympic coaches, professional athletes, renowned professors, and thousands of coaches, teachers, students, and players from all over the world.

These experiences helped us to discover some incredibly important research in the fields of motor learning, performance science, and psychology that should have totally changed the way we train and develop students, athletes, and people in general – but they have not.

It's our mission to change that.

Each morning we get out of bed inspired to read, research, learn, and share as much as possible with students, athletes, coaches, and teachers.

Welcome to the hub for change. Welcome to the tribe. Welcome to Train Ugly.
